The mission of Iroquois Ridge High School is to be a center for life-long learning, for their 1,300 students. In order to instill the motivation for life-long learning the school believes it must encourage students to accept responsibility for their own learning. To do this, the school looks to help students acquire the values, knowledge and skills necessary for them to succeed in the world. The curriculum helps provide students with the perspective necessary to understand their relationship to the community, country and world. The staff at Iroquois Ridge High School is committed to this mission.
